

A Note from Pastor Ken:

The other day I was leading the Wednesday morning Bible Study on Revelation, and Toni MacHaffie asked if I knew of any helpful websites for studying the Bible. So I've decided to start compiling a list of websites my colleagues and I find helpful. These are websites we use that have information we consider reliable and trustworthy. This is not an exhaustive list, and I would invite all of you to email me with religious websites you use and find helpful. We'll put a link on our website, update it, and it will be there for everyone to use.

I've divided up the sites into Biblical studies; Worship and Spiritual formation; Practical Theology; Interesting blogs/personal websites, and Presbyterian sites:

Biblical Studies:

www.ntgateway.com The New Testament Gateway is published out of Duke and offers a wide ranging amount of information and articles all relating to the New Testament. I use this site often and find the information well updated and extremely reliable.

www.otgateway.com The Old Testament Gateway is modeled after the New Testament Gateway, but at the present time isn't quite as helpful. I definitely recommend it, and with more work it will become truly excellent and user friendly.

www.crossmarks.com/brian/ These are exegetical notes on the New Testament compiled by a Lutheran pastor named Brian Stoffregen. These notes follow the Revised Common Lectionary that we often do, although they mainly provide information on the Gospel texts to be read. While I often find myself making different conclusions than Pastor Stoffregen, I find his analysis absolutely thorough and extremely reliable.

Worship and Spiritual Formation:

www.calvin.edu/worship/ This is the website from the Institute of Worship and Calvin College from whom we have received two worship grants. This is an extremely useful website with resources regarding liturgy, worship art, and nearly anything connected with worship.

www.textweek.com This site could fall under Biblical studies as well, but there is so much helpful information regarding worship and liturgy, I've included it under Worship. Textweek follows the lectionary and also includes prayers and liturgical elements from a wide variety of traditions.

www.centeringprayer.com This is a site connected to Fr. Thomas Keating, an extremely popular leader of the burgeoning spiritual formation movement.

www.contemplativeprayer.net This site is maintained by Fr. Basic Pennington, a friend a colleague of Keating. This site is a bit more extensive than Keating's site, offering a wider range of articles and aids.

www.csec.org/ This is the site of Thirty Good Minutes, a radio show highlighting some of the best preaching in the nation. Many of my teachers and those who inspire me are highlighted here.

Practical Theology:

www.practicingourfaith.com/ A wonderful website put together by creative people trying to live out the Christian faith in relevant and dynamic ways.

www.faithnet.org.uk/ Steven Richards, an English professor of religion and philosophy, put this site together as a way of more widely sharing the information he teaches at University. Witty and intelligent- this is a great site.

www.spiritualityhealth.com/ A broadly ecumenical website engaging all aspects of spirituality and health. Great articles and book lists!

Interesting Blogs/Personal Websites:

www.anewkindofchristian.com This is Pastor/writer/story teller Brian McLaren's website. McLaren is an extremely interesting thinker and a leader in what many are calling the Emerging Church.

www.akma.disseminary.org/ When I was at Princeton, Dr. Adams (known popularly as AKMA) taught New Testament and was a beloved figure on campus. He since moved to Chicago where he continues to teach New Testament and publishes this absolutely riveting (and hysterical) weblog. This is well worthy your time.

www.sarahlaughed.net/lectionary/ Put together by an Anglican priest, Sarah Breuer, this is a blog focusing on the lectionary and was voted one of the best spiritual weblogs by Beliefnet.org.

www.sojo.net/index.cfm Many of you know the author Jim Wallis from his extremely interesting recent best seller God's Politics, Sojourners is the magazine Wallis has run for decades. Full of great reading- get to know Sojourners.

Presbyterian Sites:

www.pcusa.org The website of the Presbyterian Church (U.S.A.), this site has helpful information about nearly every aspect of our denomination.

www.outlook-pres.com The oldest independent Presbyterian newspaper, the Outlook offers insight on what's going on in the church today. (Note: I should tell you I serve on the board of the Outlook, and so my recommendation of this fabulous publication is FAR from unbiased. ☺)

You'll notice I've completely avoided websites involving children and youth for now. This would require a whole other newsletter article! So again, happy surfing- and send me sites that you are finding helpful. God be with you all!

In Christ, Ken

TPC Music Page

Christmas Handbell Concert gets RAVE reviews!

Approximately 200 people, over 50% of them visitors to TPC, attended the first Christmas concert by our very own handbell choir. The choir did an amazing job of covering a wide variety of music and truly helped to usher in the Christmas season for many in attendance.

In addition, the choir raised nearly $3000 towards the purchase of our own set of handbells. Almost $1500 of that amount was given in honor or memory of a loved one. Remember that, until we raise the full amount needed (around $20,000) you can continue to contribute to the fund and designate your gift in memory of a loved one or in honor of someone living, maybe even a member of the bell choir who has touched your life with their gift of music.

TPC CHOIR NEWS

We are delighted to have Dr. Ron Fabbro joining the TPC choir as their accompanist. An accompanist will allow Kris to direct the choir. Direction allows much more certainty on technicalities like entrances and cutoffs. It also allows for much musical interpretation by use of dynamics and other methods. Since there won't be a piano soundboard between herself and the choir, Kris will be more able to hear during rehearsals and can be more selective than in the focus of her attentions. Kris and the choir are delighted for this opportunity to improve their musical skills. In addition, Ron will occasionally cover a Sunday morning service, allowing Kris an occasional Sunday off.

Renato Fabbro received both Bachelor of Music and Master of Music degrees in piano performance from the University of Colorado at Boulder, where he studied with Larry Graham and Angela Cheng respectively. As a fellowship student at Rice University, he received a Doctor of Musical Arts degree under the tutelage of John Perry. Dr. Fabbro has performed at the Aspen Music Festival, Sarasota Music Festival, Boulder Bach Festival, Idyllwild Arts Academy, and was recently invited to give a master class at Marylhurst University in Oregon. Competition prizes include top honors at the Fort Collins Symphony National Young Artists Competition, Young Pianists Competition, MTNA Wurlitzer Collegiate Artist Competition, and the Lee Piano Competition. Concerto performances include those with the Fort Collins Symphony, Grand Junction Symphony, Centennial Philharmonic of Denver, Colorado University Orchestra, and the Grand Junction Youth Symphony. Dr. Fabbro has served on the faculty of Lee College, and has also taught at Rice University and the University of Texas at San Antonio Summer Music Institute.

If you would like to join the TPC Choir, contact any choir member, Kris Sparks, Music Director or Ron. The choir practices every Wednesday night from 7:00 – 8:30pm and Sunday mornings at 9:15 before worship.

Please remember

Loving Stitches

Quilters and knitters are making quilts for children in need.

Picture this true scene:

A class of 5th graders, with a gift of new quilts around their shoulders – listening to a story about quilting. All are children who stay with their families in shelters.

We need:

- Someone to cut out material
- Someone to tie quilts (at home if you'd like)
- Someone to do hand sewing (at home if you'd like)
- Quilters and knitters (we have material and yarn)

Come join us –

Are you tired of writing checks? You can avoid this problem if you use an automatic payment service available from most banks for your contribution to TPC. If you would like more information about automatic payments talk to Scott Mitchell or Herb Zachow.

Also, don't forget to pay your per capita at $21.04 per member.

PRESBYTERY OF THE CASCADES FAMILY CAMP

Looking for a family activity for next summer? Consider Family Camp at Honeyman State Park on the Oregon Coast. Dates are Saturday, July 29 through Saturday, August 5, 2006. To returning family campers, these dates are correct; camp is being extended one day! Registration forms will be available in early 2006.

Lost Bible - Elizabeth Shafer misplaced her Bible at TPC approximately a month ago. She left it on her seat in the back of the Sanctuary. This very sentimental Bible was given to her by Thom Nelson, and she had it full of notes, verses, prayers, and sayings. Please contact Elizabeth or the Church Office if you have seen it.

NURSERY HELP NEEDED

Loving hands are needed to care for our children in the nursery. We are looking for a new childcare provider for Sunday mornings. If you know someone who would be interested in this position, please contact the church office.

In the meantime, we are staffing the nursery with volunteers through the end of February. Please offer to spend a Sunday morning with the 3-year-old and under crowd. We could use your help and you might make a new friend or two! Please contact the office or Sherry Nelson 503.692.3156 to sign up.
