

A Message from Pastor Ken

A couple of weeks ago I preached a sermon framed in part around the life of Origen. Quite a few of you overlooked the atrocious title, 'Original' Sin, and expressed your interest in this incredibly fascinating church father. And so here is, as Paul Harvey used to say, the rest of the story...

You already heard about how Origen was born in Egypt during a time of intense persecution. You heard how his father was put to death for his beliefs by the Romans, and how a teenage Origen would have joined him had it not been for his mother who hid the boy's clothes in order to keep him inside. And you also heard, excuse me while I shift uncomfortably in my seat, how Origen mutilated himself according to his interpretation of different scriptures in Matthew. And you heard how Origen went on to become one of the greatest theologians and scholars of the Bible ever produced by the church, often credited with establishing the final form of the New Testament. (While I'm unaware of any historical research into this topic, I think it's fair to say that after his little incident, the energy Origen might have dedicated towards his dating life was channeled into his studies.)

Now, if this were all we knew about him, it would be enough, wouldn't it? Persecution, castration, creating the bounds of the New Testament... I mean that's a pretty interesting life story. Believe it or not, friends, his story only gets more interesting.

One of Origen's most interesting and controversial ideas came from his reading of the Book of Acts. Early on in Acts Peter is speaking to the people after healing a crippled man. He says to them: "And now friends, I know that you acted in ignorance, as did also your rulers. In this way God fulfilled what he had foretold through all the prophets, that his Messiah would suffer. Repent therefore, and turn to God so that your sins may be wiped out, so that times of refreshing may come from the presence of the Lord, and that he may send the Messiah appointed for you, that is, Jesus, who must remain in heaven until the time of the universal restoration that God announced long ago through his holy prophets." (Acts 3:17-21) And this last phrase, 'the universal restoration', captured Origen's imagination.

In Greek this phrase is rendered in a single word: apokatastasis. (You pronounce it: a-po-kuh-TA-stuh-sis.) And when Origen came across it, his eyes were opened. To Origen's way of thinking, if God truly is who we believe God to be, if God is all powerful and all loving, then ultimately God's loving arms will be wrapped around everyone. Yep, everyone. No exceptions. Origen believed, because of this one word in the Bible, that God loves not only you and me, but that God loved Judas, Hitler, your incredibly rude neighbor who lets his dog poop on your yard and doesn't pick it up, and even the devil himself.

Origen wasn't the only thinker in the church to believe this either. Another Egyptian, Clement of Alexandria, wrote about the apokatastasis. And Gregory of Nyssa, building off of this idea, declared that hell isn't a holding tank for bad guys, but a kind of refining fire that all of us will experience before we are ready to be restored to God at the last.

Eventually, Origen's beautiful vision of God's love being so powerful that no one will ultimately be left out in the cold proved inconvenient. The Holy Roman Empire was never subtle about using religion as a means of control. And the empire wasn't about to lose the fear of hell as a means of keeping people in line. Just a few hundred years after Origen died, Emperor Justinian called a church council to the beautiful city of Constantinople. One of the many things this body declared was that Origen's understanding of the apokatastasis were anathema, which meant anyone teaching or believing them would be excommunicated.

As I write this, I'm looking out my office window onto Boone's Ferry. I'm listening for sirens. Surely, the Constantinople Anathema Police are on their way. Before they arrive it would probably be wise to say I really agree more with the Emperors of the world than this strange, Egyptian theologian. But if they make me choose, I think I'll stick with Origen. I'll choose love.

IN THE NEWS

STAN AND MARILYN HEATH

Stan and Marilyn Heath began attending TPC regularly the same year Ken Evers-Hood became our pastor. Both Stan and Marilyn grew up in California.

Marilyn is from the Sacramento Valley and Stan grew up in Oakland. They met at a social while attending San Jose State and have been married for 57 years. Stan worked for Owens Illinois in Portland for 20 years. After retiring they moved to southern Oregon living in the Rogue Valley and then Medford. They moved back to Portland to be closer to their daughters. In the past both have enjoyed golf, hiking, walking and gardening. They used to travel stopping at golf areas on their way. Stan still enjoys gardening and landscaping. He has recently begun working out with a personal trainer. Marilyn is an avid reader. What made up their minds about TPC was its friendliness. They feel the Fellowship Dinner Groups of Eight are a good way to get to know the people in the church. Both agree that TPC is blessed with an outstanding music program and talent in the pulpit.

COOK'S CORNER RECIPE

Earthquake Cake

1 C coconut
 1C pecans, chopped
 1 German Chocolate Cake mix, plus ingredients called for to make the cake
 1/2 C butter (1 cube)
 8 oz. pkg cream cheese
 1 lb powdered sugar

Grease 9 x 13 inch pan. Layer coconut, then pecans. Mix cake according to directions. Pour over pecans. Combine softened butter, cream cheese and powdered sugar. Mix well. Pour on top of cake mix. (You could drop by spoonfuls, if you wish. I found it hard to pour.) Bake 35 to 45 minutes at 350 degrees. (I baked for 45 minutes.) Appears bumpy. Cool. Will be cracked like an earthquake. May be served with ice cream or whipped cream, but really does not need topping.
